

"The owner wanted the house and landscape to blend as one. Low maintenance, energy efficiency, and modern, bright spaces were also important design considerations. The home and artist studio are nestled along the Royal River within an existing clearing in the woods. The interior, designed to support our clients' large collection of artwork, is efficient yet spacious. Jane Dahmen's colorful and abstract painting works perfectly in this space. The bold color enlivens and complements the simple and neutral tones of the wall, ceiling, and floors, while the organic tree forms express the verticality of the room and support the connection between the interior artwork and exterior landscape."
